

for group life insurance schemes, excluding flexible & spouses insurance.

for disability insurance schemes, excluding critical & severe illness insurance.

The benefit is provided on condition that the individual lives insured pay risk premiums on their full potential cover amounts.

This means that if the employee pays premiums only on his/her restricted cover amount, the employee will not qualify for the Accident Booster benefit at claim stage.

It is therefore important for the employer and/or fund to ensure that all lives insured, i.e. employees or fund members, pay premiums correctly on their

Accidental causes

An accident is defined as an unforeseen life event that cannot be attributed to an illness or disease. Suicide and self-inflicted injuries are therefore excluded. Furthermore, the date of the person's death or disability must occur within six (6) months of the accident taking place, to qualify for this benefit.
